The hottest costumes for Halloween this year?

Hardly. They're just a few of the characters that turn out in "camPAIN 2006," Charlie Hall and the Ocean State Follies' newest incarnation spoofing the upcoming elections in Rhode Island.

"camPAIN 2006," along with a dinner, will be presented now through Nov. 11 at a variety of venues throughout the state, including Luigi's in Johnston on Oct. 21, Nov. 2 and 3; Chelo's on Post Road in Warwick on Oct. 27; and Jacky's Galaxie in Bristol on Nov. 11.

Additionally, on Saturday Nov. 4, the East Greenwich Odeum will host a special evening of local and national political humor featuring not only "camPAIN 2006," but nationally-known comic/impressionist John Roarke, who has appeared in "Naked Gun 2 1/2," "Columbo," the "Tonight Show with Jay Leno" and countless other TV shows. Roarke, originally from Cranston, will spice the evening with his dead-on George Bush impersonation as well as many more from his repertoire. Veteran comedian, Valley Breeze comedy writer, and comedy coach Frank O'Donnell from North Providence will emcee.
